Depew's Candidacy.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 18.—James W. Husted, ex-speaker of the New York state assembly, and a close friend of Depew, says in an interview: Depew is the only man who can [illegible] He declares there is no [illegible] granger influence in the west which can hurt a republican success in any republican western state with Depew as the candidate; that this cry is raised only by those having other candidates.

George M. Gleason, of New York, said: "Depew said to me only yesterday morning: 'I commenced to work for the Vanderbilts twenty-five years ago when they had only a few hundred miles of road. Now they have a thousand. I have been advanced in relative proportion. If that unfits me for candidacy I cannot help it, and if it makes a majority doubtful in any republican state I can help being a candidate against my will. I am not convinced that this is true, however.'"

Pennsylvania's Caucus.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Senator Quay did what he promised for Sherman in the state delegation to-day. In caucus he polled 36 votes for Sherman against 14 votes from Philadelphia for Fitler. Depew and Gresham [illegible] Quay says Sherman will have 55 of Pennsylvania's votes when Fitler drops out. The fact that a national committee man was not named by the caucus is construed by Pennsylvanians as meaning that Senator Quay will be made chairman of the national committee in case Sherman is nominated.

Allison Gaining Strength.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Delegate Rood of Iowa said: "Allison has strengthened materially since Saturday. We have gained thirty-five votes certain, and as it now stands we will go into the convention with over a hundred votes pledged for our candidate. Then we have an almost positive assurance from the delegates of a large state that they will come over to us after the first few ballots. If Iowa were a doubtful state I think there would be no doubt of Allison's success. Gresham has many friends in our delegation, and he is easily second choice, so far as I can see. We have not yet considered our second choice, however, as we think Allison stands as good a chance if not better than any one of the candidates. Iowa, in any event, is for the nominee. We will carry the state if the convention should nominate a man from Florida's swamps."

Still for Blaine.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Unless a great change should come over the minds of the California delegation before the states are called for nominations for president in the convention Blaine's name will be one of the representatives of the convention. Efforts of New York people to induce Californians to withhold the name of the Maine statesman for a few ballots at least, failed completely, as have arguments to the same purpose poured on Pacific slope people by Blaine men in different delegations. The arguments mainly were if Blaine be nominated it must be by the unanimous consent of all other candidates, so that the full support of the party shall be assured him. Representatives from nearly every state have called at the Leland hotel and held conferences with the enthusiastic Blaine men, but without avail.

Creed Haymond and M. H. DeYoung are inflexible. They will listen to no compromise. Blaine is their candidate and they will make no pretense of supporting any one else. "Why should we pretend to support Gresham or Harrison [illegible] dressing a delegation of Ohio men. "We do not ask any of them to make pretences, and we will not permit them to say to us how we shall vote. We do not say to New York, you should not vote for Depew till ten ballots. We have as much right to have a candidate of our own as New York has. We have a candidate; his name is Blaine, and we will vote for him on the first ballot and on the last."

The Blaine movement at the Leland hotel was more active than ever this morning. A delegation of Harrison men, led by Colonel Bridgeland and General Wallace, called on the Californians to day and had a private conference. "Only a quiet way of paying our respects to the Pacific slope people, some of whom are our personal friends," was the way Colonel Bridgeland explained. There seems to be a feeling of certainty in the minds of many Blaine men that the ticket will be Blaine and Harrison. A New York delegate said that if the California people would listen to reason the ticket would be Blaine and Alger, otherwise it will be Alger and an eastern man, probably Morton.

M. H. De Young said the Blaine movement was stronger than ever. "We have not wavered a line from our original programme in support of Blaine," he said. "There are attempts at combination among the other candidates, and no one can tell what may happen. We may have a big surprise for you and we may not." Gresham men have shown the first inclination toward a possibility of combination between the Blaine men and the Indiana judge. A number of Gresham men were at the Leland wearing a blue badge that spoke for Blaine and Gresham. Gresham has but little strength among the Californians. They think Harrison stronger.

The western state association, com-

The paper will be delivered in all parts of the city by weekly subscription of thirty cents or a monthly subscription of one dollar.

Depew's comparison of [illegible] to a funeral procession.

Colonel Flanagan of Texas asked the question in the republican national convention of 1880: "What are we here for?" It would be a pertinent question for some of the delegates at Chicago to ask.

The Colorado Springs medical societies will meet in this city to-day. These meetings are not simply social. Many papers will be read on important subjects by physicians of large experience and intelligence. It is especially requested that all our readers will keep well for the next two days so that the physicians in this city may have the full benefit of these meetings.

The republican convention that meets to-day has a more solemn responsibility than any that has met since 1860. Unfortunately there are more professional politicians in it than in the convention of 1880. These politicians are on the eve of making a great mistake. They are trying to nominate a man they can use. But what is the use of nominating a man who cannot be elected? It suggests the Irish problem, "What is life to a man when his wife is a widow?"

George R. Buckman, chairman of the advertising committee of the board of trade, has issued a neat little folder called "Information for Visitors." The folder gives a general description of the place, to which is added accommodations at the hotels in this city and Manitou and also the cost of board and lodging in private houses. We wonder stand this folder will be distributed largely in Texas and also through various railroad passenger agents. This is the kind of advertising that helps the town.

Judge Gresham since his strength has been developed has been lied about by all kinds of adventurers. His judicial position has prevented him from answering these lies. For this reason they have travelled a good way without being answered. The Boston Traveller answers one in the following:

Two well known Boston merchants who are not politicians who frequently met Judge Gresham, called at the Traveller office and joined in the statement that they had heard him speak in praise of Mr Blaine and they both had heard him say that without doubt he could have the nomination for 1888 if he wanted it because of the friendship of the west and the south for him and they both formed the opinion that he was heartily in favor of Mr Blaine's nomination and election. With one of these gentlemen he discussed Mr Blaine's policy of closer relations with the other republics of this continent and not only heartily approved of it, but, referring to the accusations made by opponents of that policy, he denied their accusation that Mr Blaine is a firebrand seeking disputes between this country and other nations.

SOWERS OF THE SEED

Helps for Them Other Than Spiritual

The following address which we publish by request was delivered by Mr George R. Buckman before the Colorado Sunday School association at Pueblo on June 13.

The particular phase of this great subject of helps for seed sowers to which I would briefly direct your attention is—the helps other than those of a strictly spiritual character which may be immediately be used. I assume at the outset that this distinction imposed by our grammar between spiritual helps and helps other than spiritual is not intended to be closely drawn. I assume it is understood that all the means which may be employed with any prospect of blessing in the work of leading souls to a saving knowledge of God's truth must strictly speaking be spiritual means—must have behind them the energy and compelling power of the very spirit of God. In this strict sense there are no helps other than spiritual which may be used. I work [illegible] in using the [illegible] from the strict definition it is but to say that I should speak of you from the way in which God's truth must reach the living soul, down in the heart—is from the use of the Bible or prayer or other means immediately associated with God's word and spirit. There [illegible] understood as I try to [illegible] these [illegible] the seed may be [illegible]

[illegible] the fact that his seed is perfect and that he strews it with faithfulness [illegible] A few [illegible]

[illegible] and which by divine blessing may be instrumental in so preparing hearts that the truth may find a lodgment? These would indeed be helps.

The reverend brother who has immediately preceded me has laid fitting stress on the importance of gaining the personal love and confidence of those we would teach. Indeed, without this our teaching must be almost in vain. We must not shrink from the thought tremendous though it be—that it is through our personality as teachers that for the most part the initial influences for good must come to those in our care. It is God's plan that his truth and love as they stream forth to His creatures shall flow through human channels. Between teacher and scholar that channel must be loving confidence. And if I were to express in a single word the most helpful and potent quality in gaining this confidence and love and [illegible] sympathy—human sympathy. This is the basal principle, every help which the teacher in using [illegible] the way to higher conceptions of truth must have its root here. It must be rooted to the farmer's wise and intelligent understanding of the needs and capabilities of his several fields, and in regards sympathy which he plows deeply here and more shallow there, drains this marshy place or clears the forest growth from that rich lowland. The teacher must understand—the human hearts and how are they to be laid bare except through the human sympathies. In some slight finite degree each teacher must imitate the master who is ever in infinite measure to minister to men's spiritual needs because by assuming a finite human nature he can sympathize with human needs. Oh what wisdom what patience is here required! Here is a scholar whose heart is crusted with the hard sod of carelessness and indifference. Upon it the precious seed of God's truth [illegible] its warmings—may be cast in vain. No dews of grace may penetrate it. What may we do? Your sympathy must be the plowshare to turn that sod, bring the life. Your sympathy will surely not fail. You will find an element of the carelessness and indifference were good motives weak, though they be some heaven directed thoughts and aspirations though the seed [illegible] whether they will [illegible] Your sympathy will discern and direct [illegible] They can be found in no other way. Turn the sod there [illegible] ter these gems [illegible] search the [illegible] for seed that may [illegible] soil. Hold up [illegible] spiritual [illegible] shades. # VIEWS IN CHICAGO.

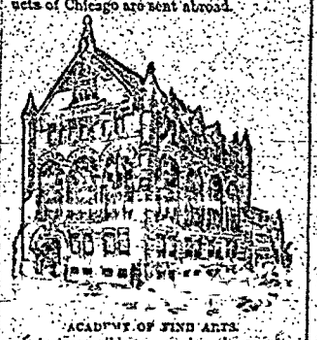
HOW THE GARDEN CITY LOOKS OUTSIDE THE EXPOSITION HALL.

All About the Town of Pork and Politics—Its Immense Packing Establishments—Chicago Culture—Fashions and Pastimes.

UNION STOCK YARDS.

In this letter I want to write of Chicago outside of the convention. The town changes from year to year, and it is now that different place from what it was ten years ago. It has a population of eight hundred thousand, and though its streets are still to be covered with mortgages, it is one of the richest towns of the United States. It is one of the liveliest and most blustering of towns. A Chicago man never speaks in a whisper, and when he walks he stamps. With all its noise, however, he does lots of business.

The visitors to the convention will see evidences of this increase of trade everywhere. They will find ten story buildings finer than many of the best buildings in New York city, and the stock yards and elevators will make them open both their eyes and their mouths. The first lot of cattle that was ever packed in Chicago was 300 head—that were slaughtered in 1832. This was only fifty-six years ago, and now the city of the western world. It probably kills and packs more cattle, sheep and hogs than any place on this big round earth, and its establishments eat up every year over seven million hogs and between one and two million cattle. Suppose the average hog to be four feet long, and a four foot hog would be a short one, put these Chicago hogs nose to tail and they would make a single file procession which would reach almost from San Francisco to Liverpool. This is supposing the hogs could walk upon the water. They go to Liverpool, however, though they do not walk there, and a great proportion of the meat products of Chicago are sent abroad.



ACADEMY OF FINE ARTS.

It is impossible to calculate the number of animals slaughtered every year at Chicago. There were enough hogs killed in 1885 to have given one-half of a hog to each family in the United States, and the calves killed numbered 58,000. There were during this year over 1,000,000 live hogs shipped out from the city, and the pounds of lard, wool and hides ran high into the millions. The stock yards of the city cover an area which would make a number of good sized farms. The Union stock yards comprise 330 acres of ground, and there are twenty miles of streets, twenty miles of water troughs, and fifty miles of feeding troughs in them. It takes five artesian wells to supply them with water, and the stock yards themselves cost, all told, $4,000,000.

Near these stock yards are the meat packing establishments, and if the convention visitors can stand the smell they will find them worth a visit. These establishments are factories whose raw material is live stock. They take up a cow or a hog and grind it out into a hundred different articles. Every part of the animal is used for something, and the hair and the hoofs are turned into manufactured articles. The work is done very quickly, and its extent may be appreciated when it is remembered that Armour & Co have a single establishment which comprises seventy acres of flooring and in which 3,500 men are employed. Phil Armour has made his fortune out of meat packing. He has also millions of dollars invested in Kansas City and Omaha, and it is a question as to whether the packing center of the United States will not soon leave Chicago for the west.

The lumber interest of Chicago is a large one, and it is the great grain market of the United States. The grain elevators of the city have a capacity of 28,000,000 bushels of grain. They are not far from the hotels, and it will pay the delegates to walk down the Chicago river and see the gigantic prison like structures in which the futures of the Chicago wheat market are supposed to be stored.

Chicago business men have more got up and get about them than those of any city of its size in the world. The great fire occurred in 1871, and five years later nearly every evidence of it had passed away. The Chicago man thinks there is no medicine like debt, and he scruples not to enter into renewed obligations whenever he finds his business going the wrong way. In this big fire three and one third acres of the best part of the city was burned, and all know how it came from the Irish widow's cow kicking over the lantern. By it 98 (92) people were made paupers and the total loss was [illegible] It came in July and before the [illegible] merchants were doing business in temporary sheds, and a year later the foundations for new buildings were laid everywhere. The fire, all told, was a good thing for the beauty of the city, and Chicago is now one of the most beautiful cities of the world.

Chicago men have no hesitancy in talking about the beauty of their city. They blow about their boulevards, and indeed their drives will compare with those of any city in Europe. Three boulevards run in almost every direction from the edge of the city. They are wider than the streets of Washington city, and the Humboldt boulevard is 200 feet wide and furnishes a drive of about three miles. The Central boulevard is the same width, and the Washington boulevard, on which many of the handsome residences are located, is three miles long, 100 feet wide, and its sides are bordered with handsome trees. Then there is the Western Avenue boulevard, five miles long, and the Garfield boulevard, which, hemmed in with elms, makes you think of the ride from the Hague to the seashore in Holland, and which has a Rotten Row for equestrians and a highway for ordinary travel. There are a number of other boulevards, and just below the convention hall, along the Michigan Avenue [illegible] the country delegates [illegible] the driving of an [illegible] The roadway of this street is 120 feet from curb to curb. It is the most fashionable drive of the city, and Chicago has some of the best horse flesh of the United States.

DOUGLAS MONUMENT.

[illegible] parks, a [illegible] of public grounds which cost the city [illegible] more than three millions of dollars. In Washington park there is a meadow, the grass of which is nearly as smooth and velvety as that of an English country seat. There is a winding lake of water in it called the Mere, which is very beautiful, and the park commission sets out 170,000 plants every year in this park.

In Woodlawn park, near the Chicago university, is the statue and mausoleum of Stephen A. Douglas, which was dedicated when Andrew Johnson was president and to attend which he made his famous "swing round the circle." The mausoleum and shaft are over 104 feet high and are made of granite, and on top of the shaft stands a magnificent bronze statue of "The Little Giant." The monument cost $100,000 and is one of the finest in the United States.

Chicago, notwithstanding its pork, is a city of considerable culture. Its papers laugh at the idea of æsthetic Chicago and when anything is said about the culture of the city the contrast is always drawn between hogs and art. It has, however, 200 resident artists and its Academy of Fine Arts is self supporting and is attended yearly by between 400 and 500 pupils. It gives art exhibitions each fall, and at the loan exhibition a number of the fine pictures of the city are brought forth. It is no wonder, however, that Chicago has many fine pictures. It is full of millionaires, and the millionaire of today, whether he makes his money out of pork or politics, or gets it by inheritance, straightway starts off to Europe and buys the prettiest things he can find. The Americans are the best art buyers of the world today and they pay higher prices and as a rule demand good work. They want the finest of houses, and some of these Chicago millionaires' palaces would open the eyes of the princes across the water.

Potter Palmer's house on the Lake Shore drive covers a sixth of an acre. It is made of Ohio sandstone, and its interior is finished with tiles, mosaics and costly woods. The floor of the main floor and vestibule is of Italian mosaic in rich design, and the vestibule itself is lined with Mexican onyx, Venetian glass in mosaic and Sienna marble. Each of the numerous rooms has different architectural designs, and one here may study architecture by object lessons, without going outside of its walls. The reception room, for instance, is made after the style of the East Indies. The main hall is Gothic, and the morning room is after a Moorish interior. The library is after the Flemish renaissance, and so on throughout the various rooms, each of which is finished in hard wood of different kinds, showing a beautiful grain and having high polish. Potter Palmer designed this house himself. It looks like a castle and the grounds about it are beautiful.

A number of the business buildings of Chicago are also fine specimens of good architecture. The Pullman building, near the convention hall, is one of the sights of the city. It is the home of the Pullman Car company, and a magnificent home it is. It is of red brick and stone, and the cost of it must have been considerably over a million.

Stock Markets.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The stock market was dull but generally strong to day, subject to spurts of activity in spots, with some hammering by traders. There was no news of a character to have much effect upon orders, but there was a general sentiment in favor of better figures and a disposition to buy to a limited extent while on the other hand the new trade promulgated by the Iowa commissioners was found upon further examination not to be as favorable as was at first supposed, and there were further engagements of gold for export. Final changes are generally in the direction of higher prices, but they are confined to small fractions except in the case of the Missouri Pacific, which advanced 1 per cent. Governments were dull but firm.

French Fears.

PARIS, June 18.—The proclamation of the new German Emperor was received in peaceful spirits here, as which will not much reassure those who have observed the intensely bitter spirit running through the old country towards France. The Emperor is a prince who has such a passion for the army must have equal passion for war.

Base Ball.

DENVER, June 18.—The Denver club will be returned from the east about Saturday morning with Yellow Jacket uniforms and the probabilities are Denver will have no more base ball this season. The club will go either to Wichita or Ft. Worth, Texas. The chances are strongly in favor of the former getting it. The club was disbanded simply because of the failure of Denver to give the club proper support, and there being no grounds on which the club could play. WASHINGTON, June 18.—No marked change in Sheridan's condition. He slept well and was slightly better this morning. No more bulletins till to-night, unless there is a decided change.

WASHINGTON, 9 p. m., June 18.—For the past twenty-four hours General Sheridan has been comfortable. He slept well and restfully last night and has coughed rather more than usual this afternoon. His pulse and respiration are satisfactory. He is gaining in muscular strength, his appetite is good and the mood of his mind is improving.

Wards at the Tabor.

DENVER, June 18.—To night, which by Denver theatre-goers is termed "society night," witnessed one of the largest gatherings at the Tabor Grand since the Booth-Barrett engagement. The attraction was the initial performance in this city of "Virginius" by Frederick Warde which was a great success in every respect. Every lady who attended was presented with a handsome medal hung upon an unique easel as a souvenir of the two thousandth performance at the Tabor opera house and the fifteen hundredth performance of "Virginius" by Mr. Warde.

A French Sensation.

PARIS, June 18.—In the election held yesterday for member of the chamber of deputies for the department Charente, Gillibert (Bonapartist) received 31,410 votes, Werlier (republican) 23,929, and De Roulede 20,656. Another ballot will be necessary. The defeat of Paul de Roulede has caused a commotion. Conservates call it Boulanger's coup de grace.

Russia and the New Emperor.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 18.—In political circles here the friendliest feeling is shown towards the new German emperor, and the belief is expressed that he will continue the peaceful policy of his father, from which it is thought he can have no motive for deviating.

A funeral service for the late Emperor Frederick will be held in the Lutheran church on Wednesday next.

"T" indicates less than .01 of an inch.

A fine maple floor has been put in The Antlers dining room.

The police magistrate fined a man for drunkenness yesterday.

According to a previous agreement all the butchers of the city have reduced the price of meat.

Reserved seats are now on sale at popular prices at No. 112 Pike's Peak avenue for the engagement of Salsbury's Troubadours at the opera house, next Friday evening.

W. F. W. [illegible] acting as clerk at the Grand View hotel, has resigned his position and will [illegible] the city for a portion [illegible] of which he is the local agent.

Tutt, McDaniel & Co. have removed their real estate office from the Midland block to the north room of the old Hughes stand on the southeast corner of Tejon street and Pike's Peak avenue.

The water will be shut off from all that part of the city north of Boulder street and east of Wasatch avenue at 9 o'clock this morning for repairing the main, and will be turned on as soon as possible.

There will be a very important business meeting of the W. C. T. U. this afternoon at three o'clock, at Mrs. Sabine's, 418 North Nevada avenue. A full attendance is earnestly desired. Mrs. H. J. Balcomb, secretary.

Daniel O'Neil, who was arrested for robbing a man near the Denver & Rio Grande track last Friday night, was fined $20 and costs yesterday by Justice of the Peace Shideler. Being unable to pay the amount he was committed to the county jail for ten days.

Mr. McShane has received the contract from the street and ditch committee for changing the channel of the Monument creek above the flume of the city ditch. The work will cost about $300 and will be completed before Mr. McShane begins work on the sewerage system. It is thought that the proposed change in the channel will prevent the flume from being damaged or swept away during high water.

All those who wish early and accurate news regarding the campaign should subscribe for the Gazette at once. During this week we shall probably receive at least twenty thousand words a day, giving an account of the proceedings in the republican convention. Our arrangements for political news are very complete and thorough. Every voter should have a copy of the paper. Mr. Taylor will take weekly subscriptions at thirty cents per week or monthly subscriptions for one dollar.

The Afro American club held a regular meeting at the city hall last evening which was attended by twenty-eight members. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The constitution and by-laws of the Young Men's Republican club were adopted with a few slight amendments. Mr. C. W. Collins was elected a delegate to the convention of state republican clubs, and Mr. C. R. Robison was elected a delegate in place of L. F. Jones, resigned. Speeches were made by several members, in which any colored man who would vote the democratic ticket was denounced as a traitor. The club adjourned to meet with the Young Men's Republican club next Monday night.

The movement alluded to in the Gazette of Sunday for the formation of an institution to be known as the Bellevue Sanitarium is the outcome of a need long and strongly felt in this city. Many persons of very small means come to Colorado in failing health requiring care and comfort for which they are unable to pay, although by no means dependent on charity for subsistence. It is to help this class that the women of Colorado Springs appeal to the public for financial help. It is proposed to raise at least $10,000 to purchase a suitable property on the outskirts of the city and to make improvements necessary for starting the work without delay. In addition to this there must be a fund raised for furnishing, etc. It is very important that no time be lost in making such arrangements, as there is a daily necessity for such an institution. If possible it should be opened by July 15th. Subscriptions may be sent to Mrs. H. A. Wagner, treasurer, at the El Paso bank.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean, in speaking of Salsbury's Troubadours, who appear at the opera house next Friday evening, said: "Jolly Nellie McHenry was never jollier than she is as Sally Styles in 'The Humming Bird.' This piece, by the way, is the best the Troubadours have ever had. It is well constructed for its purpose. The business and details are well managed, and the first and third acts are really quite creditable as farce productions. The complications are amusingly conducted, and it might almost be said they are artistically devized, for it really requires more skill to fashion these than the uninitiated may imagine. Messrs. Fred Williams and George Stout have done their work creditably, and have, moreover, put lines in the mouths of their characters that are not altogether imbecile. 'The Humming Bird' is amusing, and though they who laugh may not get much intellectual profit from the entertainment, they need not feel that their evening devoted to The Humming Bird has been wholly a loss. Miss McHenry has the part of a lady's maid, who is forced to act upon the stage, and so a preparatory step has memorized great quantities of Shakespearean verse, portions of which mingle theatrically with her ordinary speech. It is a boyish sketch, quite full of absurdity, in which she frolics, dances, sings gambols, cut capers, lies prone upon the floor, and variously disports herself as only Nellie McHenry can without giving offense to proper audiences. An incidental feature of the first act is a tramp who uninterrupts swiftly flits across the scene body pierced by the doughty Rentzo, with [illegible] to say. The Humming Bird is undoubtedly the comedy hit of the season."
